LITTLE ROCK (AP) - Atty. Gen. Joe Purcell, a potential Democratic gubernatorial candidate, said Tuesday he be-lieved Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller is optimistic about his chances for re-election in 1968. At Forrest City last week, Rockefeller said he thought he could win if the election were held tomorrow, and this week at Hot Springs he said he did not feel that his chances for re-election had decreased any.

The governor has one vote and

"he is certainly entitled to his opinion," Purcell said.
"Elections are decided by a majority of the votes cast in a particular election," Purcell said, adding that there are a-bout 800,000 persons in Arkansas registered to vote.
"I would feel that a better barometer on the outcome of the elections in 1968 would be to check with them since they have a right to express their opinions and on election day vote for candidates of their choice," Purcell said.

Taxes Tied to Girlie Show

GREENUP, Ry. (AP) - A group of citizens protesting a bump-and-grind show at the annual county fair have been warned of an imminent tax hike if the hootchy-kootchy is canceled in 1967. The City Council met Monday and left it up to the volunteer fire department whether to keep the show. The department runs the fair each year.

But a council spokesman said the firemen would lose about $1,200 if it cancels the girlie show-by far the fair's most popular event.

Letters to the Editor

Editor-the-Star: I recently received from my sister, Mrs. Dorsey MacRae, Jr., of Hope, copies of your paper containing photographs and stories of the 38', 39' and 40' Hope High School Class Reunions.

Included also were photostats of news stories published in the Star at the time of the graduations. Both were responsible for a flood of memories of the many happy years spent in Hope.

Although I did not graduate from Hope High with the class of 38', having moved to Little Rock at the beginning of my senior year, I always felt that the class in Hope was the one to which I belonged.

Many thanks for making it possible to remember and see old friends and classmates of thirty years ago. Sincerely, over here this spring, but then when they found I was hitting to all fields, they played me like any other guy." "Any other guy" is, strangely, what Maris prefers to be, though the compulsion to be one of the crowd doesn't diminish his pride as a professional ballplayer. Maris simply never felt very comfortable as a celebrity and didn't enjoy the attention and intrusions that it included.

Gus Bernier Aug. 7, 1967

"I enjoy playing baseball again," he said bluntly. I enjoy being with a team that's in the middle of the pennant race. I enjoy being in a place where, when you get hit in the elbow or something like that and can't play for a couple of days, they don't accuse you of goofing off.

Since the emotional strain he showed in his successful assault on Babe Ruth's single year home run record, Maris has been depicted as a sullen, difficult man. The Cardinals, and the media entourage that follows them, haven't found him that way. The trade from the Yankees to St. Louis last winter meant a rebirth of enthusiasm for Roger.

"I would have quit," he says. "absolutely—if they didn't trade me. I'm not saying how much this is going to lengthen my career. But at least, it's kept me around one more year." As Maris candidly sees it, he's a flawed ballplayer, though outwardly he looks perfectly healthy and there's no discernible sign that his reflexes have slowed up at all.

"I can't pull the ball any more like I used to," he admits. "That's why you see me hitting the ball everywhere. Since the operation on my hand a couple of years ago, I can't get a tight grip on the bat, feel the power in both hands. Most of it comes from my left hand, and I'm just slapping the ball." Of course, he has slapped out some vital hits in the Cardinals' surge atop the National League pennant race. The guys who play alongside him also find him a valuable contributor in another area—defense. "We knew all about his hitting, naturally," says Curt Flood, who plays centerfield to Roger's rightfield. "We didn't know that he was as great a glove man as he is. We're proud to have him out there." Maris does find one distinct change in playing for the Cardinals instead of the Yankees. "This is a bigger park," he says, "especially in rightfield. That means I've got a lot more ground to cover than I used to have.' You'll notice that Maris didn't use the excuse of the vaster expanse in rightfield mitigating against his home run pro-

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) -Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller said Tuesday that he would not allow the planned special legislative session consider the proposed merger of Little Rock University and the University of Arkansas unless the money is found to support the move.

bRockefeller told a news conference that he thought everyone agreed as to the need of an expanded university facility at Little Rock "but you can't do it at the expense of bankrupting the state."

will have ever held." He said that he will offer basic reforms at the session and will resist cluttering it up with items which can be postponed until the regular session in January 1969. Rockefeller said he doesn't plan to "spring any surprises" in the call on the legislators, adding that he intends to have the recommendations of each of the commissions in the hands of the 135 legislators at least 30 days in advance of the special session. The governor said the length of the session depends on how well the legislators do their homework. He said he didn't know how long the session would last but that he didn't intend to complicate it with too many subjects.

Included on the proposed agenda for the session are amendments to the Turnpike Authority Act to allow the authority more freedom in financing by eliminating conflicts between the Authority Act and the Revenue Stabilization Act, Rockefeller said.

He said he planned to seek removal of residence limitations in the State Police Act which has complicated his appointment of Lynn Davis, and in the I mean business." Department of Administration Act which kept him from naming a Detroit banker. Clarence "Mike" Frost as director.

Another bill Rockefeller said he planned to present the legislature with would be to set up classes of roads and highways to permit the state to speed up construction of various road projects.

Rockefeller said that people continue to express dissatisfaction with him for "not doing more" in his seven months of office.

"We are putting together a team . . . but you've got to go through a series of three steps." He said the steps were getting a competent team, getting realistic plans and implementing the plans. On riots, Rockefeller said he had organized law enforcement agencies so they would "know what to do promptly" in such an event.
